We approve of the announcement which has been made in some of the churches in this city, that the men need not wear their coats at church during the hot weather unless they want to. This is right. Men stay away from church because they cannot bring themselves to put on a coat. They can go to the ball game or to the park or to their neighbor's house without a coat. Others screw up their courage and endure the torture. Why not make it unanimous during August and include the preachers?

Judge Hoagland has gone. He was a friend of ours. We have called on him a number of times to address the school children on patriotic occasions and he never failed us. One of the great passions of his life was his love of his country. He offered to die for this republic and when his enemies laid down their arms and his life was spared he decided to live for his country. He was an example to all young people of what a patriotic man should be and in this as well as in other ways he will be missed by those who knew him best. We need a hundred men right now in North Platte who will take up the work where the Judge quit and live as he lived for his country.

Major A. E. Whitworth, recruiting officer for the Signal Corps U. S. Army visited the local recruiting office on Saturday to assist in receiving applications for the Victory Medals and to interest men in enlisting for the Washington-Alaska Cable and Telegraph System in Alaska.

He couldn't win the girl of his heart so he accepted his friend's advice to look elsewhere. "There is as good fish in the sea as has ever been caught," and Will Rogers certainly can catch 'em in "Water, Water Everywhere" at the Keith Wednesday and Thursday.

Everett Adams, Harry Jones and Raymond Tottenhoff came home from Cheyenne and Sidney Saturday where they attended Frontier Days and the ball game between Sidney and Julesburg which resulted in a score of 6-5 in favor of Sidney.

SCRAPPLE

A Column of Nonsense.

The other day when we were going over to Romigh's Garage to buy a Dodge Car a man told us that he counted seventy-five people swimming in the sand pits in the bed of the South River the other night. This was at the recent tragedy there. We could not understand why people would continue to go there when there was so much danger so we thought we would go over and ask Ed Davis, so we did. Ed wanted to know who said that but we told him it was none of his business but that the man who said it was as reliable as we were and Ed said that was not very much. We told him that was not what we went over there to find out and then he asked us what we thought people went down there for and we said that we supposed they were dirty and wanted to wash off and on account of the low water pressure at home they could not fill their bath tubs. He said if that was the case he thought the water in the sand pits would get dirty but we told him that probably the wigglers and turtles and leeches purified it and then Ed asked if people wore anything when they went into the sand pits to wash off and we said yes they wore a little and he said how do they get clean if they wear their clothes and we said we did not know. Then he said that he would think people would be afraid to go there after so many had been drowned and we told him that we would think so too and he asked if we would be afraid and we said we were not afraid but the sand hurt our feet and Ed said "Well, Well, that's too bad," and we told him that it would probably hurt his feet too if he went over there and he said for us not to get too fresh or he would lick us and so we came away. And now we know.

Frank Elliott and family will leave the middle of next week for California. They will go by auto and expect to spend some time in Yellowstone Park, going out by the north entrance and taking in points of interest on the north coast.

The bubbles on the sody water give Will Rogers the blues in "Water, Water Everywhere" at the Keith Wednesday and Thursday. It's a romance of soft drinks and love with Will Rogers as the star and some story it is, too.

As an instance of the progressiveness of the farmers of Western Nebraska, we have just learned that the North Platte Plumbing and Heating Company has sold one carload and is now on its second carload of farm lighting apparatus.
